

Flaunted 'links' with celebs to gain trust: How con man trapped targets

Devanshi Mehta
@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: Masquerading as a high-profile music album producer, KK Sharma exploited this glamorous façade to lure victims into his trap and swindle them of crores of rupees. The 30-year-old Sharma's scheme relied on creating a false sense of urgency and exclusivity. Victims were drawn in by the promise of easy profits and the allure of rubbing shoulders with celebrities and singers. But Sharma's misleading tune ended abruptly when Delhi Police tracked him to Mumbai and took him in on Sept 28.

Sharma's modus operandi was to frequent luxury suites in five-star hotels, flaunting his alleged connections with Bollywood stars. To potential investors, he spun tales about urgent foreign currency needs in exchange for Indian rupees for his celebrity acquaintances. Once the victims were hooked, he would invite them to private meetings in his suite — not just any suite, but one with two exits, a deliberate choice that ensured his swift escape.

The victims waited for a while to get their money back in exchange in Indian rupees and a tête-à-tête with their favourite celebrity, but they had to eventually leave with a heavy heart after realising they had been conned.

Sharma, an MBA graduate, came into Delhi Police's radar this summer. On May 1, the police control room alerted the cops to a theft of $25,000 from a hotel room. The victim, a foreign money exchange employee, had been sent to deliver the cash to a man claiming to be the personal assistant of a famous singer. This conman, who claimed to be Raghav Sharma, had told a convincing narrative about a mutual connection to gain trust. Sharma counted the dollars and told the complainant to wait, claiming the singer was taking a shower and he would quickly fetch the equivalent in Indian notes. Instead, he slipped away, never to be seen in the hotel. Realising he had been conned, the complainant rushed to notify his employer.

Sharma was arrested on September 28.

Unani doc murder: Accused claims monetary dispute, but later recants

Dr Javed Akhtar resided with his family in a central Delhi locality. He is survived by his wife and two daughters. A BAMS (Bachelor of Ayurvedic Medicine and Surgery) doctor, Akhtar practiced at Nima Hospital, a three-bed facility in Jaitpur Extension's Khadda Colony. He had 20 years of experience, working with various city hospitals.

DCP Rajesh Deo said that on Wednesday night, Dr. Akhtar was on duty at the hospital, accompanied by a nurse and an assistant. Around 11.5am, two minors arrived, claiming one had an injured foot. After receiving treatment, they asked for medication, and one of the minors entered Dr Akhtar's cabin, shooting him in the head.

The assailants fled on a bike, leaving the hospital staff and nearby residents in a state of panic. Police arrived promptly and sent the body for post-mortem.

CCTV footage reveals the two tried to kill Akhtar the previous night but were unsuccessful because another doctor was present there. While police are exploring various angles, the exact circumstances will become clearer after the accused are apprehended, they said.

The accused claimed that he had a monetary dispute with the doctor but later recanted his statement.

Akhtar's wife last spoke to him at 1:30 am on Thursday. In the morning, she received a call from the hospital owner, saying he was attacked. Upon arrival, she learned he was shot by two assailants posing as patients.

BJP: Drug bust accused linked with Congress

New Delhi: BJP on Thursday alleged that the suspected kingpin of the drug racket busted in Delhi, Tuskar Goyal, was a Congress functionary and had links with Bhupinder Singh Hooda's family, drawing an immediate rebuttal from the opposition party which said Goyal was expelled from Delhi Pradesh Youth Congress's RTI Cell on Oct 17, 2022, due to "anti-party activities" and was not associated with the party in any capacity since then.

"What relations does the Congress party have with drug peddlers?" BJP spokesperson Sudhanshu Trivedi asked. "Goyal has not been associated with Indian Youth Congress or Delhi Pradesh Youth Congress since his expulsion in 2022," IYC media department's national in-charge Varun Pandey said. TNN
